1. An installation called the radio station was located in a forested area north of KOMUNARKA and about 1.2 miles south of TYEPLI STAN (37°29' E/55°37' N), east of a super highway leading to MOSCOW (see Annex). Two receivers marked USA were observed in the tool house. Five steel masts, a hundred feet high and about a foot in diameter, each braced by four struts, were standing in the area. A ball was at the top of each mast. All five masts were interconnected by a single antenna wire. A fuel dump extending 10 feet underground and 3.3 feet above surface was under construction between two buildings. In the vicinity of KOMUNARKA and near the chicken farm was a RR track which led east to BUTOVO (37°34' E/55°32' N).
2. An airfield was located west of TYEPLI STAN. It was on a hill and could be seen from the highway near TYEPLI STAN. It was occupied chiefly by fighters.

b. The statement that fighters were stationed at the airfield west of TYEPLI STAN confirmed () according to which more than a hundred fighters, including jet-fighters, were observed there. It has been assumed that this airfield was either an aircraft distributing point or a fighter pilot school retraining with jet aircraft.
